

OFF THE WALL

From the late George Moonoogian collection.

Anyone who visited writer, researcher, broadcaster and record collector George A. Moonoogian's record room in Haverhill, Massachusetts was always impressed – and amazed – at the graphics on the walls. From large original concert posters to small 5"x12" promo flyers advertising new records, George displayed them for years. I don't know where he obtained them, but he was known to write directly to record companies in the 1950s when he was a teenager to get signed 8"x10" promo photos of various artists – so he may have received these flyers etc in that manner as well.

The Cash Box Award o' the Week

"I LOST SIGHT OF THE WORLD" (2:50) [Lion BMI—Robey]
"YOU DID ME WRONG" (2:33) [Lion BMI—Robey]
BOBBY "BLUE" BLAND (Duke 300)

● Bobby "Blue" Bland takes a top spot in the new release field this week as he follows his current "Little Boy Blue" shticker with two more "down home" appearances that have that national chart look. And Bobby has his top quality blues outfit on as he delivers the infectious, slow moving "I Lost Sight Of The World" and the driving, fast paced "You Did Me Wrong" – Great instrumental assist by the Bland crew on this double-barreled powerhouse.

George obtained some promotional items from Duke Records and even wrote a song with his friend, Bob Talanian, when they were seventeen, called 'Somebody Stole My Girl'. The duo submitted the song to Don Robey at Duke and in late 1958, upon playing the latest Bobby 'Blue' Bland release, they discovered that the song had been re-titled with the writer credit D. Robey. Cash Box refers to the song as being 'I Lost Sight Of The World' which is incorrect. The song title on the disc by Bobby Bland and the lyrics refer to 'I Lost Sight On The World'. The lyrics include the phrase "somebody stole my girl". True story. These wonderful pieces of R&B memorabilia are a great tribute to the memory of George A. Moonoogian – Dan Kochakian
